SECRETARY OF NAVY DANIELS
GIVES ADDRESS AT CONFER-ENCE OF STATE EXECU-TIVES AT ANNAPOLIS.

SECRETARY LANE TALKS

Secretary of Interior Also Speaks to Governors—Policies of National Guard Organizations Discussed.

Annapolis, Dec. 18.—At least a year, possibly two years will be required before the nation can return to normal peace conditions and "we will be fortunate if conditions abroad make de-mobilization possible as early as January," said Secretary Daniels here to-day, addressing the conference of state executives.

Must Increase Navy.
The navy, said the secretary, must be increased and strengthened to enable the United States to contribute to the many uses as any other nation, but he added:

"I look to see the peace conference put an end to competitive big navy building."

Speaking before the conference of governors here today, Governor-elect, Stuart L. McKelvie, of Nebraska, urged farmers to form co-operative organizations for the purpose of obtaining loans at low interest rates. Co-operation among farmers, he said, is the safest solution of most of the rural economic ills.

If given the proper encouragement all the barriers against it removed," he said, "cooperation will overcome the competition of other countries which operate economically and will reserve to the farmer his own agencies of distribution. The movement must be carried to the terminal markets."

McKelvie advocated a graduate tax and strict land lease laws providing proper cultivation of crops and pasture for livestock and grains as the best means of dealing with the absorption of the land.

Gov. W. L. Harding of Iowa, also urged cooperation for marketing. The "food produce gambles" must be abolished, he said, and an efficient system of marketing information on the production of foodstuffs developed to enable farmers in determining when to buy and to sell.

Attitude Toward Roads.
Discussing the nation's attitude toward railroads, telegraphs and other public utilities, Secretary Daniels said: "The American people will do with them what they believe is best for their country."

Secretary Lane, also addressing the conference, urged governors to prevent state branches of the council of national defense from disintegrating. He emphasized that the local council should remain in existence to cooperate with federal agencies although not acting as federal institutions.

The cabinet, he said, is discussing the future of the national guard organizations. While differences of opinion exist, return to the national guard system, some favoring universal military training by the federal government, and others urging that the time is not ripe for determining future internal military policies.

Worried against over-optimistic hopes for the early return of all American soldiers from abroad, Secretary Daniels said a year and a half will be required to contract for British ships to carry two million soldiers to Europe. Even if there was no need for soldiers overseas, he said, the organization that could land them home in a year.

Naval ships have been loaned into transports to help in the job and the navy is rapidly bringing home. But some ships and some men must stay until a permanent peace blesses the world.

Turning to the growth of the navy, Secretary Daniels said:

"The American navy must be increased and strengthened. I am asking congress not to authorize another three year program."

Richest Nation.
"The United States lost less by the war than any other great nation. It is the richest nation and has the largest shore lines. It should therefore be the most powerful of the world."

For this the three year program is necessary.

The prosecution of the war, Mr. Daniels said, the government has conducted the greatest war in history and expended more billions than ever before dreamed of and that any debt of the people he owes has been paid by the hands of those entrusted with proper expenditure. Returning soldiers, he said, the secretary, are coming back to join the great army in the line of the nation and with high resolve that no privileged class shall monopolize the fruits of their labor. Men are equally resolved that no debt of any kind shall be left to the people of the nation.

GOVERNMENT HAS CLOSED ITS CASE WITH WITNESSES

Chicago, Dec. 18.—Counsel for the government prepared to close their case of the United States against Congressman elect, Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee and four other socialist leaders charged with violation of the espionage act.

With the government evidence all in the attorneys for the defense plan to move that the case be taken from the jury and the defendants discharged on the ground that the prosecution has failed to prove its case.

The defense is said, will base its case on the right of free speech guaranteed by the constitution.

Assistant District Attorney, appearing today read into the record correspondence from the files of the National Socialist party showing that large quantities of anti-war literature written by several of the defendants had been sent to all parts of the country in the summer of 1917. He also read additional anti-war editorials published in the Milwaukee Leader of which Berger was editor.

Lawrence McDonough, a member of the anarchist squad of the Chicago police department testified to arresting Adolph Germer, a defendant, after he had delivered an anti-war speech at a socialist meeting in Douglas Park auditorium August 10, 1917.

Germer, denounced the war in his speech and said the government had killed in battle, McDonough said.

He said he often wondered whether there had ever been a war of the kind in the history of the world and whether the United States was not still a colony of England.

"Germer then told of seeing an armistice office in the city of Berlin and he said he was glad to say none accepted the invitation."

The witness said he then arrested Germer. He said Germer at first denied the charges but later admitted them.

"I told him he was a coward, like all of his kind," said McDonough.

Before Senator Knox spoke the foreign relations committee had discussed the question of the seas and on Saturday on his resolution which would record the senate in favor of such postponement and also call for the withdrawal of American military and naval forces from Europe and abrogation of the president's extraordinary war powers.

Chairman Hitchcock said later that division of opinion in the committee on the resolution was confined to party lines. He would not predict what action finally might be taken.

SETTLE WITH ENEMY The function of the peace conference, Senator Knox declared, is to settle issues with the enemy. Revision of the marine laws and a league of nations, he said, "are not issues which the Allies themselves and neutrals" and should not be complicated with "simple demands" of the peace treaty.

Instead of a league of nations, Senator Knox is enforcing "a definite attitude" provided it be a small and natural one, bringing only limited and appropriate obligations. The league of nations he said, should "await exhaustive consideration."

Can Be Arranged. "Even without an entente," the senator said, "expect for the unfinished business of the war, the United States can, without entanglement whatever, place in advance at the service of the world's peace, if seriously threatened, the whole of its influence and of its potential power. This can be done by a new declaration of some correspondence to the Monroe doctrine—a declaration which would be a declaration of Europe as a menace to America and that America will consult her friends and prepare for action as ever such menace shall arise again."

REDUCING HOURS OF LABOR.

During the past three years the working week has been reduced in many industries. This eight hour day
has become the rule in many shops.
It is quite possible that this is a permanent change. But some people are not wholly satisfied yet. At conventions of certain trades recently held,
demands were presented for a seven
or even a six hour day. Also the demand for Saturday afternoon off is becoming more general.

The people who are getting reduced
hours of labor need to remember the argument that has always been advanced for this change. It is that a man will be so much fresher and
more energetic when he works a short
day, that actually he can accomplish
quite as much or possibly more than
when he was working the longer
time.

If production should fall off as the result of the shorter day, the inevitable result will be to raise the price
of everything without any corresponding rise in wages. Many people think this is just what has happened already.

A man with much experience as an employer of labor said the other day
that he had no question that the average manual worker could do as much work in forty-eight hours in a week as he could in sixty. He admitted that the ten hour day is a long one, and tends to exhaust the mechanic so he does not toll with any energy or enthusiasm. But he felt that to get as much work in the eight hour period, the workers must set themselves to their task with some
spirit and determination, to turn out
a reasonable product. He feared they might not do this.

If the eight hour worker merely
proceeds along the same old dull
pace as before, and this condition
exists in all the trades, prices will be greatly increased without any corresponding increase of wages. There is still a great deal of hard work to be done to provide ourselves with all the comforts modern life demands.

THE REST ROOM.

This talk of a permanent memorial
for the soldiers and sailors who went forth from this community in the great struggle now ending, could take
a better form than a memorial structure, a building that would include a place for a permanent rest
room for women, for they played
their part in this war, and at the same time a structure suitable for meeting
places of army societies and a memorial hall.

During the next few years this question of a woman's rest room will be an important item. Thus far the city has been able to escape the responsibility of its maintenance and support
by shifting the responsibility upon the shoulders of the self-denying women who have it in charge. By next year
the city government must face this problem and decide it favorable to the interests of the women.

Every citizen expects increased
taxation and there is no reason why
these taxes should not be so applied
that the general public will benefit by them. Increased taxation means increased property valuation and the man who held his home at a moderate figure can obtain it and more, but not at boom prices. The question of increasing the population of Janesville
is a serious one and we must not permit wild cat speculation, laying out
of subdivisions, miles from the center
of the city for the mere sake of the speculators and land men taking a clean profit. Legitimate trading will be welcome but the wild cat brand is barred and will be kept out.

Meanwhile think over that question
of a soldiers' memorial being a building and one fitted to house the Janesville Center, or woman's rest room.
It is worthy of thought and consideration, and nine out of ten men who know what the present room is doing
daily for the girls and women of this city would endorse such a move as not only practical, but essential.

HOW TO ASSURE PEACE.

The great problem is how to settle
affairs in Germany so that that nation will never again start a war of conquest. We can not forever keep troops there. We may take away
their fleet and level their fortifications, but they can build new. There must be some change of spirit.

It is still a question how far
the course of the German people has been due to the evil purposes of their own hearts, or to the deceptions practiced upon them by their rulers. But anyway they have from the beginning
been given a garbled and false version of the war and its origin.

If the Germans know the whole truth about this war, and about the events that shall succeed it as time goes on, they are much less likely to start another.

The allies should now insist upon
a bonafide free press, so that any German paper that is willing to tell
the truth can freely do so.

Then at the coming peace conference a just and complete indictment against Germany should be presented.
It should bring out the clear proof
that Germany started the war, the capture of trophies and agreements,
the perfidy of the German spy system, the outrages of the army and
navy, the killing of women and babies,
the whole story of barbarity. Then
the allied powers should insist
that this truthful record be freely printed all over Germany, so that the truth can at last come home.

Wicked and cruel as the Germans
have been, yet the truth is a very powerful weapon. It would indeed be surprising if many of them were not convinced by the publication of such a record. If the freedom of the press is thoroughly established, it will not be so easy again for military leaders to sway the people by their falsehoods.

ON WITH THE DRIVE.

On with the Red Cross drive and let joy be unconfined. This grand and glorious organization that has done so much for suffering humanity
needs more members, not perhaps entirely new members, but another yearly membership paid down, to keep the good work up. Everyone can help contribute their share and
by so doing know that the money is going to be well used for the greater benefit of mankind in general. Do not fail to answer "here" when the solicitor approaches you. Be ready and waiting and show your intense loyalty to something so purely American that it is distinctive of the great
good this nation is doing to the world
at large and will do in the future. Be ready with your pledge and let the campaign go over one hundred per cent strong.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL.

Early Monday morning men and women who are conducting the drive
for 1919 memberships in the Red Cross started on their canvass of every adult in Janesville and its district.
Already over six thousand have responded. Before another Monday has been passed it is expected that Janesville and district will be able to send
in a report to national headquarters
that the response for a universal membership has been 100 per cent.

In another week, the happiest,
merriest Christmas the entire world
has ever known will be here, but in our rejoicing there is a note of seriousness that America must not forget
—there is misery, distress and sickness in Europe. Relief must be given and the Red Cross work must be continued.

Our soldiers who must finish up the big job across the ocean must be cared for—must be backed up with
the assurance that we are with them to the very end. They must be given assurance that every American is with them heart and soul. No better indication of our gratefulness for the sacrifices they have made can be given than by every adult taking a membership in the Red Cross during Christmas Roll Call week. It only costs for the expenditure of one dollar. Have that dollar ready for the canvasser when he or she calls upon
you.

Our old friend Pro Bono Publico
asks what has become of the boy that
used to work for five cents an hour?
Well, he has grown up and owns a
handsome house and two automobiles,
but his son won't do anything because they only offer him $4.00 a day.

When a disease epidemic can kill 350,000 people in this country, it should be apparent that a place in the public health service is not a suitable reward for deserving politicians.

It is not true that the Germans will not be permitted to participate in the peace conference, as after the allies
have made up their minds, the Hun
delegates can come in and listen as long as they want to.

Patriotic citizen writes to ask if it is necessary for him to stand up in bed when the young folks next door
play the Star Spangled Banner at midnight. The answer is: No. Turn over and go to sleep.

The parents that are figuring on
the expense of giving a boy a liberal education must allow handsomely on
the cost of sodas, ice cream, and fudge sundae.

It was immediately noticed that the German abhorrence of American
principles faded away when our boys
began to spend their money in their towns.

Some of the aliens who came over
a few years ago have now concluded
that immigration is a very dangerous
thing and should now be stopped.

The Germans will now be weeping
over peace terms not half as severe
as they would have imposed if victorious.

The most recent and doleful ac-
cessions to the Sunday school are ex-Kaiser Bill and Son Willie.

We all glory in our khaki uniforms,
now it remains to be seen if we shall
be equally proud of khaki overalls.

The future will expect us to go without bread so they can have cake.

POLICE ALARM SYSTEM MUST BE MADE MORE MODERN, SAYS CHIEF CHAMPION

Prospective Growth of Janesville Calls For Up-to-date Methods in Handling City's Protective Force, Head of Department Asserts.

(By Harry V. Ross.)

Janesville is not abreast of the modern idea in police protection, according to officials who have made a study of the present needs and the future situation which will arise when the city grows. Not that the members of the force are not efficient and loyal to their public trust, but because the system under which police business is handled is inadequate.

Business men in this age of progress keep a close check on every employee in their institutions in order to determine their efficiency; they expect each employee to give full value for the wages he earns. They not only protect themselves, but in return for honest service, protect those employed.

Chief Champion has no way of keeping check on the men who protect the city. They are sent out at certain hours of the day or night and remain on their beats until their tour of duty is finished. If the chief desires to get into communication with them he flashes a light at certain places along certain thoroughfares. If the policeman happens to see it at once and can get to a telephone immediately, the chief can communicate his orders. If he does not happen to see the flash or cannot get immediate telephonic communication with headquarters, there is a delay.

That is one phase of a situation the city faces. Here is another:
Under the present system a patrolman goes out on his beat and remains until he is relieved. In all the time he is away from the station, unless he has something to communicate, he is not in touch with his superiors.
It is not known where he is or whether he is traveling his beat according to instructions.

Chief Champion points out that Janesville should have a modern police alarm system with boxes at intervals on the beats so that the officer on duty could call at stated periods.

"Such a system would be inexpensive and should be installed," declared Chief Champion in discussing the matter. "We have good men or they would not remain on the force. I am not finding any fault with them. But not only for the protection of the public but for the protection of the men themselves, should such a system be inaugurated. The central office should be in touch with the patrolmen at least every hour.
We should know where they are, not only as a check on their activities, but for their benefit. Suppose, for instance, we did not get a call from a policeman scheduled to report at a certain time. If the overlap was considerable we could send out and see what had happened to him. If might have gone up a dark alley and got snugged or an accident might have happened. Under the present system a man could be killed on his rounds and we would not know of it until his tour of duty had ended.

"Other cities have installed these systems and Janesville will have to come to it. With the entrance of more people and the rapid growth of the city as the result of industrial development, the police problem is going to assume greater proportions.

"We have twelve men, including myself, sufficient to patrol the city with the present population and under present conditions. There is no question but that the number will have to be increased and our methods of keeping check on a larger force will have to be improved.

"With the building up of that section adjacent to the plant being erected by the General Motors Corporation, it is possible that some time not far distant a new station will have to be erected.

"But by all means give us an alarm system so that we can handle our present problems in a business-like way. No matter whether I stay in office or not, this matter should be considered seriously now."

Kosztka Incident Recalled.

The first serious difficulty between
the United States and Austria arose 65 years ago as a result of the Kosztka incident, which strained relations between the two countries almost to the breaking point. Martin Kosztka, a Hungarian patriot, after taking part in the uprising in 1848 and subsequent years,
came to America and declared his intention of becoming a citizen. In 1853, while on a visit to Smyrna, he was seized and imprisoned on board an Austrian war vessel. He had with him an American passport and claimed the protection of the United States
warship St. Louis, then in the harbor of Smyrna. Captain Ingraham demanded that Kosztka be released, but he was not freed until after the decks
of the St. Louis had been cleared for action.

JANESVILLE WINS HIGH HONORS IN RED CROSS DRIVE

CITY TAKES FIRST PLACE IN STATE GROUP AS RESULT OF FIRST DAY'S CAMPAIGN.

HAS 4,542 MEMBERS

Amount Represents the Actual Number Which Have Been Turned In At the Chamber of Commerce.

Janesville, in two days, has enrolled 4,542 members in the Red Cross as the result of the Christmas Roll Call and the cash in the hands of the committee. This represents actual paid memberships which have been brought to the Chamber of Commerce by captains in charge of the canvases. The tabulation is made up to Tuesday night and does not include several hundred which were procured today.

The enrollment by divisions is as follows: Business district, 1,645; factories, 754; booths, 302; First Ward, 451; Second Ward, 385; Third Ward, 722; Fourth Ward 270 and Fifth Ward 20.

City Wins Honor
This city won honor on the first day of the drive when it took first place in its group with 2,661 members enrolled, according to a letter received from John W. Maple, Milwaukee, assistant director for Wisconsin, by Victor P. Richardson, general chairman, Janesville is grouped with such cities as Kenosha, Marinette, Stevens Point, Portage and others with about the same population.

Mr. Maple in his letter says: "We are pleased to receive Janesville's report and have put you down for 2,661 members, although we understand you have a number of members in sight which will equal your last year's showing. This is a fine start you are making. We will look forward with pleasure to your future reports."

First Canvass Near End
Reports at the Chamber of Commerce this morning indicated the first canvass would be finished by night so that the "mopping up" crew could start work Thursday morning.

Mr. Richardson urged all who have the right to display a 100 per cent banner place them in the windows of the homes so that it will not be necessary for the "moppers up" to call upon all members of the family have enrolled.

Women workers in the wards, captained by Mesdames George Woodruff, F. C. Grant, L. C. Levy, Mary Hoy, and Arthur Jones, report an encouraging response in most homes. The women have worked faithfully and untiringly and the success of the canvass in Janesville over the 100 per cent is due to their efforts.

County Slow In Reporting
Chairman in the district outside of Janesville have begun to report to the state headquarters, Milton Junction and Beloit being the only two places that have given Chairman Jensen any indication of how the drive is progressing.

Milton Junction reported 212 and Beloit 174.

TAKEN FOR GIVING BOOZE TO SOLDIERS

James Duell Taken Into Custody By Police For Giving Bottle Of Liquor To Men In Khaki.

James Duell, hailing from no place in particular who has been employed by the Janesville Tractor Company for a short time as crossing watchman on North Academy street was taken into custody last evening for giving liquor to soldiers.

Duell arrested the suspicions of the officers and they followed him. He went down North Main street and turned east on North First street. It is alleged that he met the soldiers on a street between North First and Second and handed them a bottle of liquor.

He offered no explanation when taken to the police station, and is being held pending the arrival of Federal officers from Madison.

RED CIRCLE CLUB IS SUGGESTED BY SPEAKER

Plans for the establishment of a Red Circle club in Janesville by the War Camp Community Service were presented by J. Edgar Biggs, representing the war and navy departments commissions on training camp activities in the war camp community service at the Rotary club meeting held at the Myers hotel this noon.

Mr. Biggs, who has headquarters at Madison, and who has studied the conditions here relative to the welfare, explained the need for a soldiers' club and canteen where the boys who had given up home life and the pleasures of civilian life could feel free to go and secure recreation as they desired to make at a nominal price. He said that the war camp service would get behind the plan and in conjunction with local people work out a club which would fill in the gap which is so necessary to the relaxation period of the soldier. He spoke of the phases of the work in other communities and how they had been carried out. Other pastimes provided for the boys. A committee consisting of M. O. Monat, F. A. Blackman, Geo. F. Kimball and J. A. Melrose, who were with Mr. Biggs, said an outline might be sent to headquarters to perfect the plan.

S. J. Sheffield of Evansville, recently returned from France where he was wounded and in the U. S. heavy artillery service, also spoke briefly of the Red Circle club for soldiers. He referred to his experience in the trenches and the part his unit took in the heavy shelling of enemy positions.

The Rotary meeting was adjourned for three weeks on account of the holidays.

OUR LADIES' BAND IS ORDERED TO DISBAND

Music may have its charms, but assistant district attorney, Whitely, of Chicago failed to be convinced that the American Ladies Military Band that was recently stranded here, had any right to wear a semi-military uniform even if they were musicians. In a Chicago morning paper the latest of the trials and tribulations of this organization is recounted as follows: Ray Vincent Troy Jackson, director extraordinary and impresario plenipotentiary of the American Ladies Military Band, pulled a cigar out and declared on the frailty of women yesterday to Assistant District Attorney Whitely.

"It was a great little band," he explained, "until Flossie left."

"How did she happen to leave you?" asked the lawyer.

"What happened to Flossie?" "She died," Mrs. Maybelle got a better job, and Helene got tired, and Dorothy got married and Leonora went back to her husband, and Vivian got in a temper and quit, and Tricie found a millionaire who offered to star her and—

"Stop, stop!" Interrupted Mr. Whitely. "Tell me why you are wearing that Santa Brown belt and those decorations on your coat."

"Well, I had forty-two girls in my band and now there are only eight. As for the belt and collar insignia, I thought it was all right."

"Wants To See Octette?" "Firing in the night girls," said Mr. Whitely.

"Light appeared, with trench caps and semimilitary overcoats."

"Take those off immediately you get to your hotel," said Mr. Whitely. "We can't," chorused the eight. "Our trunks are held for hotel bills."

"The director put nine in pawn to get carfare from Milwaukee to Chicago," broke in Belle.

"Well let them all go as soon as Jackson gets their trunks out," said Mr. Whitely. "Be sure to change."

HOW SPARTICIDES OBTAINED THEIR NAME

According to reports coming over from Berlin, Germany, the true identity of the Spartacists has been decided to take her defeat in a style worthy of the ancient Romans. Not the least theatrical in the play of events there is the rise of a Bolshevik party under the leadership of Karl Liebknecht. Not satisfied with the ultra-modern name of Bolshevik, this leader has gone back into the archives of Rome and has emerged with a treasure of a name for his followers, the Spartacus group, or the Spartacides, as they are now commonly called.

In a dispatch last week it was stated that Liebknecht, exponent of anti-militarism, addressed the populace of Berlin calling them to rally to his side from a truck protected by good machine guns. So, perhaps, he imagines the Roman slave stood, surrounded by the weapons of warfare of his own time and fashion. The Spartacides, however, are schoolboys, which has been put into his mouth.

"Ye call me chief; and ye do well to call him chief who for twenty long years has ruled the arena every shape of man or beast the broad Empire of Rome could furnish, and who never yet lowered his arm. If there be one among you who can stand up to me in public or private brawl, my actions did belie my tongue let him stand forth and say it. If there be three in all your company, can face me on the bloody sands, it then come on. And yet, I was not always thus a hired butcher, a savage chief of still more savage men."

With equal truth and equal justice might the leader of the Spartacus group in Germany say that he was not always thus. The ancient Spartacus goes on to tell how he had been a peaceful shepherd in the valleys of Thrace, when the Romans, called to Greece and captured him, making him one of the slave gladiators of the dis-solute metropolis. As it is known in history, he called the eighty other prisoners of the School of Capua to his side and started one of the most fearsome revolutions in Rome, which lasted from 73 B. C. to 71 B. C.

At that time Rome was in a state of moral disintegration, which allowed the Thracian shepherd to lead a band of slaves and wild dissensions on the one hand and kept suffering from famine and autocratic oppression on the other. The corn laws provided for the gratuitous feeding of the starving proletariat in Rome had to be continually changed to meet the demands of the people. The armies of the state were absent on foreign service. All these things made the moment ripe for the uprising of Spartacus. Before very long he had gathered a vast army recruited from the ranks of suffering Thracians, Gauls and Germans. The armies of Rome met with defeat after defeat at their hands and for a time it looked as though the tables of Rome were being turned in a more vasty distance to the ruling classes. But, as is true in most rapidly rising militant movements, there was dissension in the ranks of the victorious slaves and the army divided into two, some going to the side of one Crassus, a rival leader, the rest standing firm by Spartacus. All the members of the ranks, were, however, agreed on one point, that to the victorious army belonged the spoils of their conquests. As a result, much against the wishes of Spartacus, the soldiers drunk with power, pillaged, raped, and plundered the country in manner vastly superior to that of their aforesaid oppressors. In the end, of course, the superior forces of the organized Roman armies defeated them and made a horrible example of them by crucifying 6,000 rebel soldiers on the Appian Way. Spartacus died like a true soldier, with his sword in his hand.

The story marks one of the bloodiest pages in Roman history, and in Berlin they are finding other Roman parallels used in connection with a cot and which will keep the winged torments at a respectable distance. The device consists of a light framework secured to the wooden ends of the cot and a generous piece of mosquito netting is secured about this structure, fully protecting the head of the sleeper.

Only nine new cases developed since Saturday and the recoveries numbered thirteen. Quarantining of the homes of influenza patients has proven a solution of the problem of curbing the disease.

PLEASING BENEFIT FOR FRENCH ORPHANS

A pleasing entertainment was given last evening at the Cargill Methodist church by Group 2 of the Senior Standard Bearers, with the chairman, Mrs. Charles Beck, in charge. The musical selection, "Let Him In," Mrs. P. P. Shreve sang two solos. Just a Little While, and "Forgotten," and Mrs. Sallor gave a reading, "Duty of Missions in Europe." Mrs. Fred Anderson read a French story, "A Little French Violin."

A pantomime, "Experience of a French Gunner," was given by a group of little girls, led by Gwendolyn Jacobs, and accompanied by two soldiers.

David Biehringer gave an account of some of his experiences in the war zone, when he was serving as a soldier. He prefaced his talk by saying that one year ago he was living in a dugout, and went into an observation post where he could see a long stretch of battle line, getting ready to go into action. Part of his duty was to repair the tractors used just then in hauling the artillery into action. These were manned by crippled soldiers, who were incapacitated for fighting. Another duty was to supply the armies. "Many times," he said, "we had to plow around a group of graves, where soldiers had been buried where they fell."

He described some of the horrors of the bombardment of Paris and other towns, when so many women and children were killed, and gave a vivid word picture of the bravery of the widows and orphans of the soldiers of France who had fallen.

He addressed in a new type of life preserver costume. A collection was taken at the close of the program, by several young ladies, which will be devoted to the fund for the French war orphans.

Two former premiers and two ambassadors have been chosen by Japan to represent her at the peace conference. The emperor will not be present.

Some men are born great, others acquire greatness and still others have greatness thrust upon them. In the last named class is Count Benjank of Holland.

There is doubt in some circles whether the president's communication to congress on the eve of his departure was a message or a message.

The recent disturbances in Mexico have roused our old friend, the editor of the Northern (Mo.) "Enterprise," who says: "If somebody doesn't get busy and stop those stunts we are going down there ourselves with a six-shooter and drive the whole passel of jelly-headed Chili glommers into Hades, head first, lock the gates and start the big blaze."

We don't care how the Germans make a living now—nor the cooties. Who's going to feed the cooties? Has anybody thought of that?

The old boys who used to spend all their time whittling full-rigged ships inside of glass bottles are now sitting up nights trying to invent some theme of discord between the United States and the allies.

HAVOC CAUSED BY HAILSTORM

Account of Destruction in England in 1887 Seems Almost Incredible—Horses Felled at the Plow.

The greatest hailstorm that ever occurred in England was that of April 29, 1887, recorded by Edmund Halley, the astronomer. The story seems almost incredible, yet it is told by a philosopher, the contemporary and friend of Isaac Newton, and an accurate observer of natural phenomena. The main body of the storm, he states, fell upon Lancashire, in a right line from Ormskirk to Blackburn.

"The breadth of the cloud was about two miles, within which compass it did incredible damage, killing all sorts of fowl and small creatures, and scarce leaving any whole places in any of the windows where it passed, but, which is worse, it cut off the blade of the green corn so as utterly to destroy it, the hailstones burying themselves in the ground; and the bowling-greens, where the earth was anything soft, were quite defaced, so as to be rendered unserviceable for a time. This I had from an eye-witness."

"The hailstones, some of which weighed five ounces, were of different forms. Two hailstones were weighed at Ormskirk which came to three-quarters of a pound each. As a young woman at Bootle was running for shelter her hat fell off, and a hailstone that hit her behind the ear made her tumble. The stones rebounded, many of them two yards high. At Ince two horses were knocked down at the plow, and a man fell at the same time."

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl nineteen years old and want a few times with a boy before he had to go to war. I have known this boy all my life and love him very much. He has been over there a year now and I have written to him all the time. He says in almost every letter he loves me and I believe those words. I know he would not want me to, but he has never said anything about it to me.

Do you think it would be all right if I would write and ask him if he cared if I did go? Would it be rushing things a little on my part? Should he speak first? I surely do not want to do anything to hurt him and I am willing to do anything I can for him.

You have not known the boy long enough to be sure of your love for him or his for you. Love is so serious a matter that a boy should not speak of it unless he asks a girl to become engaged at the same time. In case you are not engaged you are free to go with other boys. I can see your position and realize that you do not want to offend the boy you love. At the same time you must protect yourself against those who would of his ceasing to love you when he returns. It is not necessary to write and ask permission.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have gone with a young man four years. We had just begun to love each other dearly when by poor crops he lost all his property, including a car. He never comes to see me anymore, but writes love letters still, telling me how he would love to see me. I have a Ford runabout at my liberty. Would it be proper for me to take a car and go to see him and bring him to my home or go to shows in it with him? He sometimes asks if I love him since he has failed. How can I prove this?

It will be perfectly proper to call on him in your machine. It is not necessary to tell him repeatedly that you love him in spite of his failure. Do not fail about the matter. The fact that you remain true to him will be proof enough of your love.

SIDE TALKS

—BY—
RUTH CAMERON

The Christmas of the Clean Slate. The Chinese, as you doubtless know, have a fine way of signaling New Year, their year begins on the first day of playing every bill which they owe, that they may start the New Year with a clean slate.

I have a friend who thinks the Chinese can teach us something in the line of celebration. She has borrowed for our greatest day the Chinese idea of the clean slate.

Only she carries it farther than just the paying of bills.

First She Pays All Bills. She sets aside an evening a week for the last three or four weeks before Christmas for this celebration. In the first place she pays all her bills. Then, if she has any old jobs pigeon-holed, a charity to investigate, a clipping to send to someone who will be interested, she cleans that work up.

Her Old Friend Letters. Next she writes what she calls her old friend letters. Most of us have gathered as they are passed through the mail a collection of these letters. And these friends whom we have "loved long since and lost awhile" not by death but by life, are often all we have left of the "see every day." To all such, whether

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Are boys and girls of my age to be seen in couples if they have known each other all their lives? (2) I have chapped hands. What is a good remedy to cure them? (3) Is it all right for a girl to let a boy kiss her if she has known him for over a year and loves him dearly? MARY PICKFORD.

(1) Yes, unless they are accompanied by a chaperon. (2) Have your druggist prepare a lotion of two ounces of bay rum to one of glycerine and twenty drops of carbolio acid. Enough perfume should be added to this to give it a pleasant odor. (3) Unless a boy and girl are engaged they should not kiss.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty years of age and my husband has left me. I am heart-broken. His mother has caused four of our troubles. Should I give him a divorce or not? Since you are heart-broken you must love your husband. Do not give him a divorce. Go to work and try to be the best and happiest little woman possible. Your real worth will not be overlooked by him and in time you will probably get together again.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Last spring a very dear friend of mine went to France. I had one letter from him and he said he would write again soon, but I have never heard a word. He asked me to write often. I have written at least twice a week. I do not know what to think. I do not know where any of his folks are and so cannot write to them. How can I find out if he is alive? He has "proved" true blue in lots of ways. I cannot think of him as neglecting me. ANXIOUS.

The Red Cross in your home town will be glad to get you the desired information. Call at the headquarters.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Should a boy take hold of a girl's arm if they are walking along a muddy country road at night? MARGUERITE CLARK.

Yes. MARGUERITE CLARK.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

As a leader among women, Mrs. Medill McCormick, wife of the senator-elect from Illinois is preparing to take a full part in the interests of women. Mrs. McCormick, who has inherited political ability of a high order from her father, the late Senator Mark Hanna, has been assigned an important part in the Republican national organization.

She has been selected as chairman of the Republican women's national executive committee, with headquarters in Washington. Plans are under way for a complete working organization among the Republican women of the country and for full participation in party affairs. Through Mrs. McCormick the committee has announced its intention of championing the cause of wage-earning women in the readjustments growing out of the return of the country to a peace basis.

Although very active in politics, Mrs. McCormick admits that her time outside of public affairs is largely devoted to her favorite pastime, which is agriculture. As a girl she lived on her grandfather's farm in Ohio and she has since then been there, she now puts to practical use in the management of her own large 1,500-acre farm. But farm management and politics do not occupy her time for this very modern and progressive woman is the mother of two beautiful children, Katrina, aged six, and Medill, two years old.

It is significant that Mrs. McCormick feels that all of her outside activities help her to be a better, broader mother instead of causing her to neglect her maternal duties.

ODD BITS ABOUT WOMEN

This happened in New York. A woman entered one of the government employment offices and asked for a job. She didn't care particularly for the money, it seemed, but she wanted to help her country.

She never earned a dollar in her life, had no trade of profession and

and has a bright red spot on one cheek and very red lips and rubs his nose quite often and does not sleep very well. She is in the line of the charges from the bowels. I am told all these symptoms mean worms.

What is the cause of these symptoms? I have given worm powders but he passed no worms. What is the cause of these symptoms? I have given worm powders but he passed no worms.

ANSWER—Worms are not dangerous to the human body. It would be positively cruel to inflict any alleged worm medicine on a child on such a charge.

Ignorant mother is generally cruel. Any mother who is willing to experiment with such a charge on her child is certainly not a mother. Sweet things have nothing to do with worms. They are caused by swallowing the eggs of others worms in food or water, or from the fingers when they have been in the mouth.

1918 Mince Pie—One cup meat, two cups apple, one-half cup raisins, one cup jelly, one lemon, one cup corn syrup, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon allspice, one-half nutmeg, grated. ## YOU WILL HAVE TO "CARRY ON"

While the Kings and Emperors are being disposed of you will have to "carry on." Your job is to work and save and serve. Don't waste food or fuel. When you eat wheat be sure it is the whole wheat.

Shredded Wheat

is a whole wheat food. In making Shredded Wheat no particle of the wheat berry is wasted or thrown away. Always clean pure and wholesome. No sugar is required—just milk and a dash of salt.

over from breakfast can be converted into a pudding for dinner. Scald two cups of milk and pour this over one cup of leftover cooked cereal. Mix thoroughly and add a half cup of molasses, one and one-half tablespoons butter substitute and one and one-half teaspoons of salt. Pour into a greased pudding dish and bake one hour in a slow oven.

Doughnuts—Doughnuts will not absorb the fat if you put a quarter teaspoonful of ginger in to the dough. The spice will not affect the taste.

To Make Dustless Duster—No need of buying a dustless duster. Take an old pair of stockings, cut off the feet, cut open the legs at the seam, wring

the material out of kerosene, hang on a line to dry.

Painted Nails—Before driving nails or hooks into the wall, dip in enamel and let dry thoroughly before using. When putting any wet garments on them they will be no rust spots as there would be if they were left uncoated.

A Wash Basket—Ask your grocer for a hamper such as sweet potatoes are shipped in. Line it with discarded white oilcloth from kitchen table. Fold it in and over top of the basket, fasten around the top, (through slats) with boken and cord, and trim it over even. This is a most useful wash basket for small washrooms.

WAY DOWN YONDER.

Several and various were the uncomplimentary exclamations that greeted the Calistoga Hotel. Harta Beaton strolled into the Neck to Nature Club one evening, just in time to hear a discussion going on about the crows in the cornfields and their part in the winning of the war.

"Haw!" laughed the Colonel, reminiscently. "Speaking of crows reminds me of the time my father made a scarecrow out of me, and I was a scold."

"Was it you, father that did it, Colonel?" asked Charlie Smithers, smilingly, followed by a snicker among the members.

"Brat—yes, you see, the crows in our cornfield became so used to our regular scarecrow that they grew quite fond of him. And they used to bring him grains of corn and deposit them in his pockets and corn

The Thirteenth Commandment

By
RUPERT HUGHES

Daphne turned her eyes away decently as the slip of paper on a plate was set at Clay's elbow. But she noted that he started violently as he turned the bill over and met it face to face. He studied it with the grim horror of one reading a death-warrant. The amount staggered him. He turned pale. He recovered enough to say to the waiter, "You've given me the wrong check."

The waiter shook his head. "Oh, no, sir!"

Clay studied it again. He called for the bill of fare, and studied that. Daphne felt so ashamed that she wanted to leap into the river. Abroad, it is believed that the man who does not audit his restaurant bill is either an American tourist or some other kind of fool. But in Daphne's set it was considered the act of a miser. Clay worked over his check as if it were a trial balance.

"Ah, I thought so," he growled. "The bill of fare says that this Montreal melon is seventy-five cents a portion. You've charged me three dollars for two portions."

A look of pitying contempt twisted the waiter's face.

"The melon you ordered, sir, was all out. I served you a French melon instead."

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"I need not thank it mattered to the gentleman."

Clay smiled. He was not to be troubled by such a sop. He whipped out his pocketbook and laid down every bill in it. He stretched his legs and cracked his trousers pockets and dropped on the plate every coin he had. He withdrew a dime and waved the heap at the waiter.

It was evident from the way the waiter snatched the plate from the table, that Clay had not tipped him. In fact, Clay said, "This will be a lesson to you."

They slumped down the steps. The starter said, "Cab, sir?" and made to whistle one up. Clay shook his head and walked on toward the monument of Grant. Daphne followed. They went as humbly as a couple of paupers evicted for the rent.

Daphne was afraid to speak. She saw that Clay was sick with wrath, and she did not know him well enough to be sure how he would take her interference in his thoughts. She trudged along in utter shame.

PETTY DINK—THE STORE IS OVERLOOKING A BET IF IT DOESN'T HIRE HER.

The worst of her shame was that she was so ashamed of it. Why should she care whether a waiter smiled or frowned? But she did care, infinitely. Daphne could not pump up any enthusiasm for the scenery. Her lover took no advantage of the serial of arbors and the embracing bowers. He never kissed her, not once.

Daphne ceased to be sorry for Clay and felt sorry for her neglected self. Then she grew angry at herself. Then at him.

At length she said, with ominous sweetness, "Are you going to walk all the way, dear?"

"You said you wanted to, didn't you?" he mumbled, thickly.

"That's so."

She trudged some distance farther—a few blocks it was; it seemed miles. Then she said, "How far is it home—altogether?"

"About three miles and a half."

"Is that all? The heroine of an English novel I've been reading used to dash off five or six miles before breakfast."

Patriotism and pride helped her for a quarter of a mile more. Then she resigned:

"I guess I'm not an English heroine. I don't believe she ever really did it. I'll resign! I'll have to ask you to call me a cab."

"Pretty hard to find an empty one along here at this hour," he said, and urged her on.

"Let's go over that way to the inhabited part of town," she said, "and take a street car or the subway."

And then she stopped and said, with guilty brusquerie, "Have you got your pocketbook with you?"

Patriotism and Pride Helped Her for a Quarter of a Mile.

"No, I left it at home tonight. Why?"

"Daphne, I haven't got a cent!"

"Why, Clay! You poor thing!"

"That's why I was so rough with the waiter. If I'd had the money, do you think I'd have made a row before you about a few little dollars? Never! You see, I didn't expect to go out to Claremont after the theater. The taxi cost more than I expected, and then I gave the head waiter five dollars instead of one. I ordered with care so that it would come out right. But that business about the union finished me. I just made it. I never was so ashamed in my life. And I had to drag you into it, and now I'm murdering your poor little feet."

"That's the funniest joke I ever heard. Why didn't you tell me before?"

"It's no joke."

"Why, of course it is! You have only to go to your bank tomorrow and draw some more."

He did not answer this. He said nothing at all. She had a terrified feeling that his silence was full of meaning, that his bank account would not respond to his call. She could not ask him to explain the situation. She was afraid that he might.

She marched on doggedly, growing more and more gloomy, and dejected. Her little slippers with their stilted heels pinched and wavered, and every step was a pang.

"Let's go over there and get on a street car, and dare them to put us off," she suggested.

"It's a pay-as-you-enter car," he growled.

The world was a different world now. The drive that had been so tremendously lovely as she sped through it in a taxicab was a pathway in Mojave. She limped through the hideous, hateful, unpardonable length and felt that it was a symbol of the life ahead of her. She had counted on escaping from the money limits of her home. She was merely transferring herself from one jail to another.

Her young lover had dazzled her with his heedless courtship, flown away with her on motor wings, dipping to earth now and then to sip refreshments at a high cost, and then swooping off with her again.

And now his wings had broken; his gasoline was gone; his motor burnt out; and the rest of the journey was to be the same old struggle.

She had been leaning heavily on Clay's arm. Now she put it away from her in a mixture of pity for him and of self-reproof. When he protested, she said:

"I think I'll walk better alone for a while."

So she hobbled and hobbled by herself, pleading to be allowed to help her. But she kept him away.

And they crept on a little farther, loving each other piteously.

In the course of time they reached the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument, and Daphne sank down at the base of it.

"I can't go any farther," she said. "Not if I die of starvation!" He sank down at her side. The moon peered at them between the columns and the cells of the monument, and seemed to tilt its face to one side and smile. A motorcar went by with the silence of a loping panther. Another car passing it threw a calcium light on Tom Dunne and his guests and his chauffeur. How gorgeously they sped! If Daphne had had a bit of luck she would be with them, soaring on the pinions of money, instead of hobbling on without it.

Daphne took off her slippers and fondled her poor abused feet as if they were her children. But when she tried to thrust them back into her slippers for a final desperate effort she almost shrieked with the hurt.

"I'll have to go the rest of the way in my stocking feet," she moaned.

"Not if I have to carry you," Clay growled.

Before he had a chance to carry out his resolution a taxicab that had deposited its fares at an apartment house above went bowling by with its flag up.

Clay ran out and howled at it till it stopped, circled round, and drew up by the bridge-path. Then he ran to Daphne and bundled her into it, and gave her address to the driver.

"But how are you going to pay him?" she sighed, blissfully, as they shot along. "Not that I care at all."

"I haven't figured that out," said Clay. "I'll drop you at home and then take him to my club and see if I can't borrow from somebody there. If I can't, I'll give him my watch or the fight of his life."

"That's terrible," Daphne sighed. "To think how much I have cost you!"

"Well, I wanted to give you a good time on your little visit," said Clay, "and it's only two days till my next salary day."

Her heart sank. Her guess was right. His bank account was dry. It had gurgled out in amusing her. She felt that there was something here that would take a bit of thinking about—when she had rested enough to think.

The taxicab swung into Fifty-ninth street and drew up to the curb. Clay helped Daphne out and said to the chauffeur, "Wait!"

He said it with just the tone he had used when he said to the waiter, "Check!"

When Clay had kissed her his seventeenth farewell and was wondering how he could tear himself away from her without bleeding to death, Daphne pressed the bell.

Instead of her drowsy mother opening the door half an inch and fleeing in her curl-papers, Bayard himself appeared in his bathrobe and pajamas.

"Bayard!" Daphne gasped as she sprang for him. "What on earth brought you home so soon?"

"Money gave out," he laughed.

"Hello, Clay," he said as he put forth his hand. "Mother tells me you've been secretly engaged to my sister all this time. You old scoundrel! How are you? What's the good word?"

"Lend me five dollars," said Clay.

Dinner Stories

"Hey, waiter!" yelled the indignant diner. "There's a button in this soup!"

"A button, sir?" replied the waiter. "Oh, yes; of course, sir! That soup was made from dressed beef, sir!"

Andrew Carnegie, complimented one day on his gifts to the cause of education, said: "There is nothing more pathetic as the self-made man who is conscious of his lack of education. There poor fellows seem to think that everybody is educated but themselves."

One once heard a man with a diamond horseshoe pin say hoarsely to a waiter: "Shove over that there chandelier."

"It isn't a chandelier, sir," said

The man with the diamonds blushed. "Well, never mind what she is," he said, "shove her over. We ain't all been to college."

The inspector was visiting a country school. He was asking some of the children questions. After a while he said to the Friendly Forest:

"Now I want some of you to ask me a question that I can't answer."

After a few vain attempts a small boy said:

"Please, sir, if you were stuck in a pool of mud up to your neck and a brick was thrown at your head, would you duck?"

"Dear Gladys," I enclose check," wrote John in return, "but please don't buy any more hotels at the price they are robbing you."

BRADFORD

Bradford, Dec. 17.—This is the week of the Red Cross Christmas Roll Call. Put a dollar for every adult member in your family, in a convenient place to hand the collector when he calls on you and thus help to make his work easier.

Mrs. Wm. Wilhelmson of Stillwater, Minn., has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Chris. Hansen.

Peter Peterson will leave next Tuesday for Racine, to spend the holidays.

Mrs. Irene Jones and pupils are preparing a fine Christmas program.

Chas. Ackley of Walworth has been busy drilling wells in this vicinity.

Tales of the Friendly Forest

Dear me. It has been a long time since I've heard anything about dear Uncle Lucky. Mr. Lucky Leftindfoot, the old gentleman rabbit Uncle of little Billy Bunny, you remember, and if you don't remember him, I shall never forgive you. I think Uncle Lucky is the nicest old rabbit I ever knew.

And maybe he feels hurt to think that I've been writing so much about Beautiful Spring and the little Balmey Breezes and flowers and buds, but I can't help that, for it's spring, you know, and when spring comes you feel as if it were just about the nicest time of all the year.

And I guess Uncle Lucky thought so, too, for he began to whistle, this particular spring morning, and after he had dusted off his old wedding stovetop hat, he hopped out to the garage, to look over his Luckymobile.

"Goodness me! I must take off those runners," he said to himself, as he set to work, and by and by he had them off and then, by and by, not so very long, he had the wheels on, and after that he hung the big buffalo robe up in the hall closet and jumped into the Luckymobile and set out for the Old Brier Patch.

For Uncle Lucky hadn't seen Billy Bunny for maybe eleven of thirteen stories, and he thought it was about time for him to see his little bunny nephew.

"Goodness, gracious, meebus!" he exclaimed, as he neared the Old Brier Patch. "How lovely everything is this spring. Seems to me the earth gets more beautiful every year." And then he stopped the Luckymobile and got out and picked a dandelion and stuck it in his buttonhole.

Makes me feel young to wear a flower," said the old gentleman rabbit, and then he began to sing:

"Oh, in the spring I love to sing, And I love to hop and dance, I love to look in the Babbling Brook And to wear my Sunday pants!"

And just then Old Mother Maple flew by, and when she heard the last words of Uncle Lucky's song she stopped and said:

"I'm surprised at you, Mr. Lucky Leftindfoot. In these cruel war times you should be more saving of your clothes," and she shrugged her shoulders and tightened her bonnet strings and looked indignantly at the old gentleman rabbit.

"Oh, that was only a song," said Uncle Lucky. "But I don't blame people for calling you 'Old Mother Mischief,'" and then Uncle Lucky

Is This Your Bill?

"The Sins of the Flesh" are punished in this world—not in the next.

Disease is not an accident, nor is it sent by Providence. It is Nature's punishment for the breaking of her laws.

Hemorrhoids, for example, occasion an infinite degree of discomfort, suffering and misery. So does a fissure or a fistula.

But such punishments are meted out to those who sin against Nature in two ways, by neglecting to maintain regular, easy, thorough evacuation of the bowels—who form the bad habit of constipation, or what is a worse habit, the taking of pills, castor oil, purgative mineral waters, salts, etc., with the mistaken idea of overcoming constipation by forcing the bowels to move unnaturally.

But the Nujol Treatment for Constipation prevents such sins of the flesh, or mitigates the punishment therefor.

Nujol helps to re-establish easy, regular, thorough evacuation of the bowels.

Nujol is not a drug, does not act like any drug.

Nujol is absolutely harmless.

Nujol keeps the waste matter soft, moist, and easily voided.

Nujol is not absorbed, does not affect the body—acts as a mechanical lubricant, which can be used for any length of time.

SENIORS WIN GAME SCORE BEING 33 TO 6

The Seniors easily won from the Juniors yesterday afternoon in the second game of the inter-class tournament by a 33 to 6 score. The Seniors will now play the Sophomores this afternoon immediately after the closing of school.

The game was a closely played one, the seniors making baskets at will, holding the Juniors to three baskets in the first half and scoring loss in the second. The Juniors played little team work, while on the other hand, the older classmen played a united game.

The whole Senior squad played a splendid game, especially Allen and Sprackling. For the Juniors, McRay and Bourazuck were the stars.

The winner of the Sophomore game will now play the faculty team, after which practice for the school's first team will begin, with Sprackling as captain. The line-up of yesterday's game was as follows:

Juniors: Center, McRay and Garvin; Right guard, Powers; left guard Black and Kober; right forward, Connell; left forward, Bourazuck. Seniors: center, Rost; right guard, Sprackling; left guard, Nuzum; left forward, Allen; right forward, McDermott. Fisher and Whaley were also in the game.

The line-up of the game follows: Juniors: baskets, Connell, McRay and Bourazuck, one.

Seniors: Allen, four; Sprackling, four; Nuzum, three; McDermott three; Rost, one; Fisher, one.

MORRIS MILLER

News arrives that First Lieut. Leon Cadore, former Brooklyn pitcher, was in the thick of the battle around the St. Die sector from September 19 to November 10.

On November 2, in the Meuse-Argonne fighting, in spite of machine gun resistance, Lieutenant Cadore's division advanced three kilometers. On the day before the armistice was signed his division reached the Bois Prehuat and captured nearly a thousand prisoners.

Lieutenant Cadore is a member of the Ninety-second (negro) division, containing the Buffaloes from (Camp Upton and the old fifteenth national guard regiment of New York, now the 36th (negro).

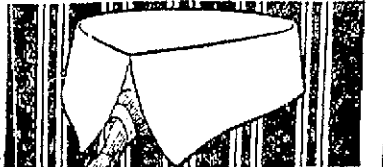

The severe fighting in the St. Die sector was referred to in General Pershing's report and is mentioned five times in the last report by General March.

WILL COLLINS LEAD SOX NEXT SEASON?

Eddie Collins.

A recent rumor from Chicago stated that Eddie Collins, premier infielder of the White Sox before the U. S. entered the war, will succeed Clarence Rowland as manager of the white hoisted team next season. One reason for the rumor, it is believed, is the fact that the popularity of the team was killed by the jumping of its stars. The signing of Collins, now in the U. S. service as a marine, would help restore that popularity.

TOWNSEND TRACTOR PLANT OPERATES TO ITS FULL CAPACITY

RELEASE OF WORKMEN AND MATERIAL GIVES OPPOR-TUNITY TO MEET
DEMANDS.

EXPANSION PLANNED

Concern Will Put New Models on Market To Meet Call For Heavier Types of Machines.

One of the industrial plants of Janesville which is running to full capacity and which will doubtless be making plans for increased output is the Townsend Manufacturing company.

This concern, which started to construct tractors in September, 1918, has increased its capacity until now it is turning out one complete machine a day. Plans for a greater production in which the new models will be put on the market are in an embryo state. With the free release of raw material, and the supply of skilled mechanics becoming more plentiful, the entire capacity of the plant can be utilized, as the building, located on S. Franklin street, will allow for expansion.

Facilities for Expansion
About fifty men are employed on the day shift and as the demand for tractors increases a night shift can be added and the number of workmen increased.

All the machine work is done at the factory. The castings are moulded by an outside concern and shipped here when they are turned out in finished form by expert machinists. The equipment of the machine shop is first class and every piece of work is finished in its slightest detail. The tractors are carefully assembled and put through a rigid test on both road and belt. After the tests are made any defects are remedied and the machines are ready for shipment.

The Townsend Oil tractor has made wonderful strides since its first introduction to those who need a substantial, sensible engine. It is a heavier machine than the ordinary small farm tractor, weighing 6,000 pounds, complete. It has a horsepower of 12 on the road or for pulling capacity and 25 on the belt for operation of farm machinery. It requires motive power.

One of the outstanding features of the Townsend tractor, according to experts in this line, is the cooling system which eliminates a difficulty experienced by many similar machines. The water capacity is 75 gallons and the circulating system is so complete that the engine can be run in hottest weather with the radiator at its best.

The construction is similar in design to that of a steam tractor boiler except it is much less complicated. The shell is rigid, with heads and boiler tubes through which cold air is drawn by the exhaust for cooling the water.

Operation on Kerosene
The power plant consists of a two-cylinder moderate speed, four cycle throttling engine which starts on gasoline and operates on kerosene.

The transmission is made up of two fixed spur gears and large shafts running in plain babbit bearings. It is equipped with one speed forward and reverse.

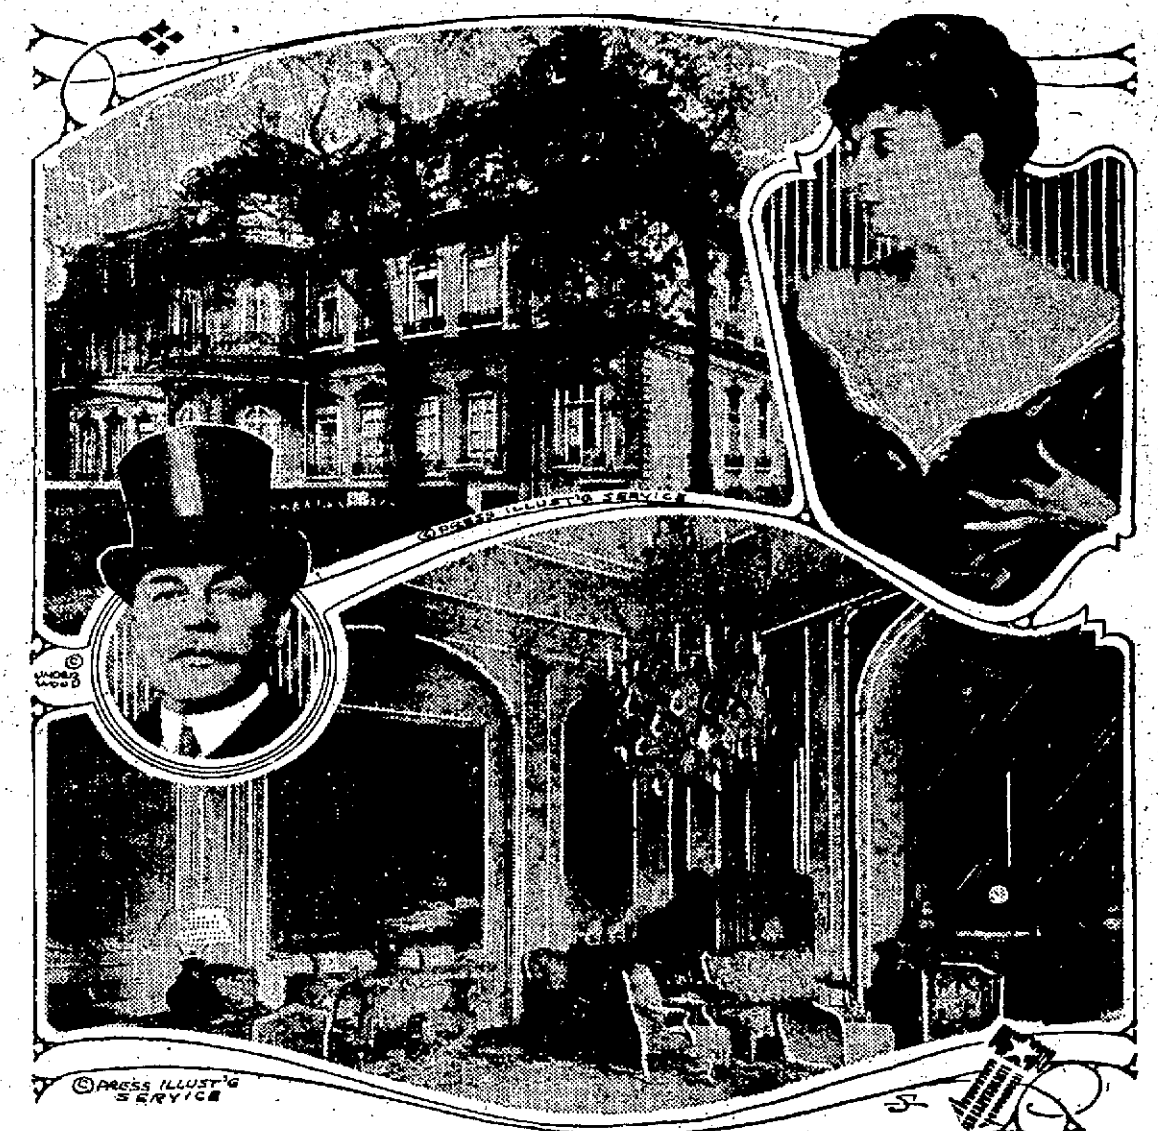

Another feature which is meeting with approval is the fuel supply. R. C. Townsend, general manager of the company has patented a carburetor which gives steady flow and assures equal vaporization in operation. A constant level of fuel is kept in the carburetor by means of a small pump working with the engine.

Careful attention has been given to the development of the Townsend Oil tractor and the tests that have been made have proven it a machine for the farmer who wants a power plant which is heavier than the small tractor and still has all the features of some of the lighter makes.

Development Has Been Slow
This development has been slow, each step having been taken after a careful study of conditions under which the engine has had to work. The aim of the builders, in fact, has been careful preparation of a well-made machine rather than rapid production of the output.

"We have been in no hurry to rush production," said Mr. Townsend in discussing the progress made by the concern. "We have been more concerned with building a tractor which will win for us a reputation as builders of a

WILSON TO LIVE IN PRINCE MURAT'S PARIS HOUSE WHICH HAS MANY SOUVENIRS OF GEORGE WASHINGTON

The photographs show Prince Joachim Murat, his beautiful wife, and their town house which President Wilson will use while in Paris. The lower picture, an interior view, shows one of the luxuriously appointed drawing rooms in the house.

Prince Joachim Murat has tendered his town house to President Wilson for the duration of his visit in the French capital. The house has been accepted for the president by the French government. The home, which is on the Rue de Monceau, Paris, was noted for its many splendid receptions held there prior to the war. It will be doubly interesting to President Wilson because it contains many interesting souvenirs of President Washington, whose niece married

Prince Achille Murat. The president Prince Joachim is the son of Prince Joachim Murat, who was born in New Jersey in 1824 and who was a descendant of Napoleon's sister, Carolina Bonaparte.

Phillips expects to return to Madison early next week. Ostensibly Lieut. Gov. E. Dittmar of Baraboo is acting governor of the state during the absence of Mr. Phillips.

Wooden Shoes Popular.
Manitowish.—The demand for wooden shoes in America is increasing and the supply is an American-made product. In Kiel, Manitowish county, is a factory which produces about 1,000 pairs a year. The shoes are made from 9 small to 12 large and are marketed through Chicago and Cincinnati. A log of basswood is cut into short lengths and then divided for a block machine, which shapes each piece into a shoe. The shoe is then machine the wood goes to a drilling machine, which hollows the inside. Next the shoe is sent to a carving machine, which takes out the heel and the corners are cut off and the finishing touch given by hand. When 50 to 200 shoes have been finished they are dried in a smokehouse to prevent cracking. After this operation they are allowed to season a month.

CHILDREN MAKE AND SELL CHRISTMAS TOYS

Some of the cutest toys which one could imagine are on sale now at the little store near the library on South Main street. They have been made by the deft hands of the school children from the fourth grade to the eighth under the tutelage of Miss Ruth Brown, the teacher of Art in the schools. There are jumping jacks, rag dolls, wooden animals of all kinds, wooden boats, sets of doll furniture, and all kinds of cunning things. Christmas cards and little water color sketches are also on sale, the prices range from two cents upward, but most of the wooden animals are priced at fifteen cents. They have been made primarily for distribution to the poor children of the city, but it is desired to sell enough of them to pay for necessary materials.

The children are serving as salesmen and are working in hour shifts, two together for company. It will repay one to drop into the store and examine the pretty things and encourage the children by making a purchase.

The children have enjoyed making them, and because they come straight from the heart and fingers of children they have a singular appeal for other children. All parents especially should be anxious to see the work done by the pupils of the public schools.

A PRACTICAL CHRISTMAS GIFT
There is nothing which would be more practical or usable than a daily paper coming to your house each day for a year. Instead of giving an ornament as a gift give a year's subscription to the Daily Gazette. It only costs $6.00 per year in the city, $4.00 in the county and is sure to be appreciated.

WARNS BUSINESS MEN TO BE FAIR

Louis F. Post, assistant secretary of labor, has issued a warning to the employers of the country to be cautious in dealing with labor during the reconstruction period that is now under way. He says that unless employers are fair and liberal in their attitude toward the workers Bolshevism threatens to gain here as it has in some countries abroad.

Using Farm Methods

Emporia, Kan., Wiscons. dairy farm methods are being used in Kansas as a result of a number of excursions last summer whereby several hundred farmers and business men visited a number of Wisconsin dairy districts. In promoting the dairy industry in eastern Kansas, chambers of commerce of the county seat cities are leading factors. A shipment of 100 bred and registered Holstein cattle arrived here this month from Sheboygan, Wis. They were ordered by thirty-seven farmers, in this vicinity through the industrial committee of the Emporia chamber of commerce. Other Kansas communities which sent delegates to Wisconsin last summer are also importing Wisconsin dairy cattle according to information received by the Chamber of Commerce here.

Love and Loyalty

By Edna Percival Brooks

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

That he was the possessor of a Liberty bond the badge at his buttonhole clearly indicated. That he had been glad to draw his savings from
the bank and invest them for the good
of his country, his glowing face plainly showed. He was proud of it all,
and his form was erect and his step
brisk.

"They've shut me out from real service, although I'm twenty-one, but I'll do my bit just the same, the best
I know how," he observed, to a passing friend. "Turned me down six times," and Adrian Noble pointed to his left eye. To the casual observer
there was nothing the matter with the eye, but it was sightless. In a football game two years previous fist or heel had dealt the delicate nerve a blow that had rendered the eye useless.

Young Noble was headed for the home of pretty, popular Nellie Hayden. He was not in love with her,
never had been, but Nellie was one of those natural-born queens of her sex who led the way in anything going on. Since war was declared there was not a branch of the pathetic feminine adjunct service in which Nellie
did not have an interest, and incen-
dentally prominence.

She had been kindly to Adrian, and had taken pains to commend him when he recited dolefully enough his repeated failures in passing examination for service. She had been sympathetic, encouraging, sisterly. Adrian always felt better after Nellie had praised his activities in the local band, of which he was cornetist, or in a parade of the home guard, which he had been elected to lead and train.

Adrian passed into the grounds of the pretty Hayden home not sorry to have Nellie notice that he had joined the band brigade. As he passed up the bush-lined walk, however, he drew
aside into the shadow of the shrubbery with a face abruptly changed from sunshine to gloom. Upon the porch was Nellie, bright, lively, fascinating as ever. She was planning a Red Cross decoration upon a visitor.

If it had been anybody but Ross
Norton, whom he did not dislike,
Adrian would not have felt so bad,
but Ross Norton had been twice rejected, and misery loves company.

The quick tears filled Adrian's eyes.
He crossed the garden to a secluded
spot, sank to a rustic bench, and buried his face in his arm. He did not sob or cry out, but as he lifted his face the tears were still trickling down his cheeks. Then he sought to dash them away and smile and become natural. A few feet away stood Myrtle Hayden, the sister of Nellie.

She looked ready to cry herself as she approached the bench, sat down beside Adrian and rested her hand upon
his own with sympathetic touch.

"What is it, Adrian?" she asked
softly. She was not Nellie in rare, ethereal beauty nor dancing, glowing eyes, but still she was lovely, and there was a witchery in her gentle
ways that acted as a balm to Adrian's
wounded spirit. So he told her all.

"You are too brave and just to envy Ross Norton in his good luck,"
said Myrtle. "Who knows but your turn may come? And oh, Adrian! all of us, even careless, flighty Nellie,
know that you are loyal to the soul.
You are doing your duty here at home,
Adrian, dear. You can help us girl
workers keep the home fires burning."

She cheered him so, her sweet personality so attracted him that he forgot or cared not to see Nellie after
all. He knew he had found a true friend, and he wondered why he had not before noted in shy, gentle Myrtle
the grace and charm that had won
him back to patience and resignation.

She was a wise, thoughtful little
miss, this unobtrusive but industrious Myrtle Hayden, and she so managed
it that insensibly Adrian was drawn within the influence of the helpful
circle of which she was the center,
engaged in co-operation with all war
efforts, both at home and abroad, where a woman could help. Adrian had an automobile and was kept busy on missions for the group of pretty, patriotic girls, all more or less a part of real work, direct or indirect, for the government.

SAMSON TRACTOR $650

THE twelve points of Samson (Model M) Tractor given on the opposite page, you will find, unlike the usual mechanical specifications, to be important features—each feature so vital as to make each one indispensable and of the utmost value.

Study each one carefully. Appreciate how the method of construction insures economy of operation, easy handling, and minimum care in maintenance.

And then think what it would mean to you to own a Samson (Model M) Tractor.

SAMSON TRACTOR COMPANY

Janesville, Wisconsin

Check up these Specifications point by point with the ordinary tractor

Twelve Important Points— and Each Point a Feature

- ☐ Motor: The motor is suspended at three points. Extra water space surrounds the cylinder jackets. An air washer cleans the motor of dirt, grit, and any other substance. In this way the efficiency of the motor is greatly increased.
- ☐ Radiator: The radiator is of tubular type. Extra large hand hole makes possible easy cleaning and any repairing caused by accident.
- ☐ Oiling: Forced feed oiling to all bearings. This method of oiling will be found in the highest-priced motors built. Forced feed costs more than splash feed but is surer and safer. Our underpan construction insures constant oil level—up hill or down.
- ☐ Fuel: Burns kerosene or gasoline without any change or adjustment. Fuel tank holds 22 gallons; with extra large hand hole, enabling one to clean the tank easily. Reserve gasoline tank holding three gallons.
- ☐ All Moving Parts Enclosed: All moving parts enclosed and self-oiling. All moving parts waterproof and dustproof. No moving parts exposed except the four wheels.
- ☐ Power Take-Off: A feature of the design of the Samson (Model M) is the "power take-off pulley" acting as a brake when in field use. This brake, actuated by the clutch pedal makes change of gears safe and easy to handle. Recognized for years as standard practice in high priced motor car construction.
- ☐ Clutch: A plate clutch is used, which is self-adjusting and runs in oil.
- ☐ Grease Cups: There are but three grease cups on the entire tractor. (On most tractors there are too many to count.) All three grease cups are in plain view. One is on the fan and two on the front axle.
- ☐ Lubrication: Lubricating oil is applied only at two points, and from there distributed to all moving parts—and only two kinds of oil are used. The motor and clutch require the regular cylinder oil and the transmission and axle require a heavy transmission oil.
- ☐ Governor: Motor speed is regulated by a mechanical governor.
- ☐ Simplicity of Construction: The simplicity of construction will be best understood when it is learned that it requires only three box wrenches to take down and put together the Samson (Model M) Tractor.
- ☐ Tool Kit: The entire contents of the tool kit consists of three box wrenches. How many do you find as necessary equipment on the ordinary tractor? The Samson (Model M) Tractor does not even require an oil can.
